For Immediate Release

Date: March 31, 2011
Authorized by: Captain Tousignant
Contact: Victim Witness Advocate Lori Grant

The Hudson Police Department has formed a new partnership with Protection One Security to provide panic alarm service to victims of Domestic Violence; the SAVE program (Security Against Violence Effort).

Together we have brought residents of the Town of Hudson a home panic alarm system that can be easily installed in a home for temporary use. A panic alarm system will be loaned to the victim free of charge. When activated, the alarm summons police to the residence in the event an intruder enters the property contrary to orders to stay away from the victim. The program is not set up to be a security system to protect property; it is set up to protect the victim's safety while in the home. Recipients of the system are referred by officers to the Hudson Police Department Victim Witness Advocate.

Protection 1 is the second largest electronic security company in the U.S. The company provides installation, maintenance, and monitoring of single-family home security systems, business security systems and multifamily security systems. Recognized as one of "America's Most Trustworthy Companies" by Forbes.com. The local NH office is located at 4 Technology Drive in Londonderry.
